STAT
Mr. Bannerman has asked me to reply to your letter of 27 March 1969 describing the [redacted] computer system for summarizing and reporting world wide expenditures and budget controls. We appreciate your thinking of us and offering the outline description of the [redacted] system.

We have been working on the design of computer based systems to assist us in the management of our men, money and materiel resources for about three years. Reporting overseas financial and logistical transactions using our normal communications channels is a basic part of our conceptual design. We hope to begin implementing a new system on a pilot basis early in the next fiscal year.

It is always useful and helpful to know what other people are doing in this field and some of the features in the [redacted] system may stimulate some ideas that we can apply beneficially in satisfying our own management requirements. Thank you for giving us the benefit of the description of the [redacted] system.

Sincerely,

Support Information Processing
Coordinator
